RESOURCES OF OUR SUBURBS.

The Busy Hum of Industry Resounding at Midway.

Last Summer's Confields Transformed Into a Budding Village—Employment Provided for Scores of Men and Homes Being Erected for Their Occupancy.

Just a short distance without the corporate limits of Roanoke is situated the property of the Midway Iron Company, and the adjacent property is now being built up at an amazing rate.

Several companies are operating in the vicinity, and fields where the corn waved in last summer's winds are now resounding with the noise of hammer and saw, and next week the spike factory will add its quota to the cheerful din of industry.

The Home Investment Company is now surrounding the spike factory with neat cottages, which they will seek to encourage the workmen to purchase. They are neat structures containing six rooms each, with a cellar, and the company is preparing to erect thirty at once. Before the end of the year there will be quite a village.

The Suburban Home Land Company, of which T. W. Sims is secretary and treasurer, has thirty-five acres immediately adjoining this tract, which they will grade, lay off and put upon the market next week. Already three or four lots have been sold at private sale, and the owners will build upon them immediately.

Upon this tract, too, will be situated the plant of a manufacturing plant employing between 100 and 200 hands, the details of which are now maturing, and which will be made public next week.

While the Suburban Company was instituted as a means of providing suburban homes for Roanokers, the demands for sites for manufacturing plants and their establishment in that locality have created a new demand for homes for employes.

Along the line of these companies will be constructed by the Vinton Land Improvement Company their splendid shell road boulevard connecting Vinton and Roanoke with Salem, which will at once be a great business thoroughfare and a pleasure trip. This road will be the route to the Blue Ridge and Coyner Springs, and will be the most beautiful drive in the Valley of Virginia.

The Midway Iron Company is progressing rapidly to completion of its plant. Steam connection will be made to-day, the machinery tested, and everything put in readiness to begin the work of turning out railroad spikes by the hundred tons on Monday.

As an instance of how one industry creates a demand for another may be cited the case of the cooper shop. In itself this is an adjunct to the spike factory. It has shipped to it the different portions of an unmade keg and fashions them into the spike receptacle.

Mr. O. M. Brock, of Monroeton, Pa., who secured the contract for furnishing the Midway Iron Company with kegs, has been prospecting for a site on which to erect the plant for turning out the heads and staves, and has an option on a place on the Roanoke and Southern, near which may be obtained the necessary lumber.

On this site Mr. Brock will have building and machinery having a capacity for making heads and staves for 20,000 kegs each month, and this establishment will engage the time of fifty or sixty employes.

Thus we will manufacture from raw material here in our midst that which is now manufactured in Pennsylvania and shipped here. It is also thought that material may be had in this vicinity for making the hoops.

From present indications, the coming spring will see one continuous line of industries in full operation from Vinton to the westerly line of Roanoke, and the adjacent hills dotted with the cozy cottages of the workmen engaged in them.

PERSONAL ITEMS.

What People are Doing in and Out of Roanoke.

Francis T. Brinkley, formerly of this city but now of Bristol, Tenn., is in the city. He is enthusiastic over the future of his town, and thinks its prospects were never brighter.

J. M. Ballard, of the Ohio Daily State Journal, published at Columbus, is in the city, stopping at the Continental Hotel. Mr. Ballard was in this section a week or two ago and was so much pleased with this city and Southwest Virginia that he concluded to come back and make further investigations. This time he brought Mrs. Ballard. They will remain in the city several days and then travel through Southwest Virginia.

Mr. J. W. F. Allemon, president of the Salem Improvement Company, was in the city yesterday.

J. A. Thompson, F. P. Ninger and Oscar M. Frantz, of Salem, were in Roanoke yesterday.

MAYOR'S COURT.

Mayor Evans was confronted by a motley lot of prisoners and witnesses yesterday when his court convened, and most of the cases developed the usual amount of queer swearing.

R. J. Doyle opened the reception by pleading guilty of being drunk and down on the street, and paid $3 fine for his exhibition of himself.

Bristow Harris amused himself Saturday night by profane and boisterous language, and was assessed $5.

Charles Norville entered George Colvin's eating house, on Railroad avenue, Saturday night about 12 o'clock, and did not heed Colvin's demand that he should go out. Colvin thereupon started to throw him out, and a fight ensued, in which Colvin's wife took a hand.

Officers Gee and Eames went into the house and arrested the parties, and Norville hit Officer Gee. Colvin and Norville were each fined $5 for the affray, and Norville $10 additional for assaulting an officer in the discharge of his duty.

Bertha Sanders was fined $10 for carrying an ugly-looking razor without a handle, with which she tried to carve George Davis Sunday night. The man had a long slash right down the middle of his back, and Bertha was arrested after the mayor got through on a charge of assault with intent to kill. This case was sent on to Squire Howerton for trial.

Osborne Stokes and Mary Dillard were charged, on the oath of James Dillard, Mary's husband, with living in adultery. The evidence showed that Mary Dillard moved her effects from James' house and went to board in the house where Osborne lives. Nothing to substantiate the charge could be produced, and the mayor dismissed the case and put the costs on James.

Benjamin McCabe assaulted H. W. Lee in the latter's room Saturday night, and received a dangerous knife-thrust in the left breast and another one in the side. It having been shown that Lee was acting in self-defense no charge was preferred against him, and McCabe was fined $5.50.

James Rogers was fined $3.50 for stoning a neighbor's house for a fancied wrong.

James Johnson and Marshall Bruce were fined $2.50 each for engaging in a fistfight on Railroad avenue Saturday night.

Lincoln Barnett was fined $10 for carrying concealed weapons.

William Simms was fined $5 for committing a nuisance on Railroad avenue.

Charles Scott raised Cain on Railroad avenue Sunday, and will eat his Thanksgiving dinner in jail in default of a $5 fine.

Frank Moore was arrested on complaint of Mary Turner for using loud and profane language, but she could not prove her charge to the satisfaction of the mayor, and Moore was dismissed.
